“

The RTC presents a rare opportunity during which end users are, at a high level, seriously seeking out solutions providers, rather than avoiding them as at many shows, to help their organizations reduce energy use and carbon emissions. It is this level of legitimate engagement that makes the RTC Summit different.

“ The RTC as a whole has been the best resource for me as a regional engineering sustainability program manager. The Summit is a short conference that is jam-packed with beneficial information and networking opportunities. Last year, I attended alone. This year, I wanted my colleagues to experience it alongside me, and I'm so glad they did! We learn slowly as individuals, but we can learn exceptionally fast as a community! This Summit and the yearlong RTC community events help us navigate the complexity and gain confidence in solving incredibly challenging problems! Thank you to every one of the leaders and staff members of this fantastic organization!! ”

“ The RTC Summit is a great forum to hear directly from buyers about their needs as they address thermal emissions. The sessions go deep on practical technology, policy, and financing tools that the community can use to accelerate progress. This is the best event to meet the leaders in this space that have a bias to action, and the RTC facilitates the right balance of buyers and solutions providers for productive discussion.
